What are the consequences of dressing indecently?

Appropriate distinction should be made between proper attire for class, work, church, business and formal affairs, leisure and play. Zetech University fully supports our students' right to self expression. The University also has an obligation to create a conducive learning environment where all members of the Zetech Community are comfortable and not offended by any form of inappropriate dressing.

In addition, the employability of our graduates is dependent on the perception of the public and other key stakeholders on our character. Therefore, decent dressing and grooming is vital. This dresscode manual is designed to provide appropriate guidelines so that all students dress in a manner that is respectful to themselves and others. It is important that each one of us portrays a positive image of themselves for the sake of the University's integrity.

Students who fail to abide by the recommended dress code when advised by University Officials and/or student leaders, shall be considered to have violated this guidelines. It is important to note that access to the University premises will be determined by the dressing and grooming of each student.

Disciplinary action will be taken to students who violate this guidelines.
